

My Youth Group Exit Strategy

This is my personal plan to take charge of my faith by finding my next Christian community after I leave my youth group or small group.

➔ Step 1 – What’s after graduation for you?

My plans after high school are to:	<input type="checkbox"/> go to a vocational college. <input type="checkbox"/> go to a community college. <input type="checkbox"/> go to a community college, then transfer to a university. <input type="checkbox"/> join the circus and become a clown <input type="checkbox"/> go to a Bible College.	<input type="checkbox"/> go to a Christian College. <input type="checkbox"/> go to a Secular College <input type="checkbox"/> work, with no college plans. <input type="checkbox"/> work, then start college in 20__ <input type="checkbox"/> serve in the Military, then college. <input type="checkbox"/> win the Lottery and retire at 18.

➔ Step 2 – What will you do for fellowship after graduation?

My fellowship plans for the fall:	<input type="checkbox"/> I’m staying in town and want to... <input type="checkbox"/> stay at my church and find a new group (JR high vounteer, college group, etc.). <input type="checkbox"/> visit other churches around town. <input type="checkbox"/> explore a ministry on my college campus. <input type="checkbox"/> stay in the youth group until I’m 25.	<input type="checkbox"/> I’ll be leaving town and will be... <input type="checkbox"/> looking for a college/base ministry. <input type="checkbox"/> looking for a new church. <input type="checkbox"/> looking for both. <input type="checkbox"/> looking for my soul mate.

➔ Step 3 – What are you looking for in your next fellowship group?

What do I think about my current youth group or fellowship group?	What are some things I really like about my current Christian community?
	What are some things I wish were different and how could God use me to change them?
	If there are some things missing from my church, what role can I play to bring about those changes?
	Do these thoughts lead me to start looking for another church?
	If I do decide to look elsewhere, am I just running away from a problem I need to work through?

What is important to me in a fellowship group.	It is important to me that the Christian community I commit to is doctrinally sound and believes that: <input type="radio"/> The Bible is God’s word, without error, to a fallen humanity. <input type="radio"/> Jesus is fully God and fully man. <input type="radio"/> Mankind is sinful and under a penalty of separation from God, ultimately ending in hell. <input type="radio"/> Salvation from sin’s penalty is by grace, through faith in the finished work of Jesus Christ only. <input type="radio"/> Rock music is of the devil.
	I prefer to be in a small group Bible study that is made up of: <input type="radio"/> men and women <input type="radio"/> only women <input type="radio"/> only men <input type="radio"/> highly intelligent chimpanzees <input type="radio"/> others from my dorm, team, fraternity, sorority or unit.
	The crowd size I like prefer in my Christian community is: <input type="radio"/> over 100 <input type="radio"/> over 300 <input type="radio"/> under 2 <input type="radio"/> under 100 <input type="radio"/> under 50 <input type="radio"/> exactly 163
	The kinds of worship experience that really helps me connect with the Lord includes: <input type="radio"/> a full band <input type="radio"/> a few guitars <input type="radio"/> one guitar <input type="radio"/> one piano <input type="radio"/> a guy with a tamborine <input type="radio"/> tons of singing <input type="radio"/> some singing <input type="radio"/> lots of hand motions <input type="radio"/> lifting hands <input type="radio"/> hands in pockets
	I want to be involved reaching out to the lost: <input type="radio"/> on-campus <input type="radio"/> at my place of work <input type="radio"/> on base <input type="radio"/> in the community <input type="radio"/> on overseas missions <input type="radio"/> by sharing the Gospel <input type="radio"/> by helping the poor
	I want to grow in my faith and would really like to learn how to: <input type="radio"/> share my faith <input type="radio"/> disciple others <input type="radio"/> lead a Bible study <input type="radio"/> study the Bible <input type="radio"/> shave without getting cut
	The kind of believers I like to be around are more: <input type="radio"/> intellectual <input type="radio"/> mission-minded <input type="radio"/> emotionally needy <input type="radio"/> serious <input type="radio"/> fun, out-going <input type="radio"/> of the opposite sex <input type="radio"/> politically minded <input type="radio"/> ethnically diverse <input type="radio"/> artsy, hip and genuine

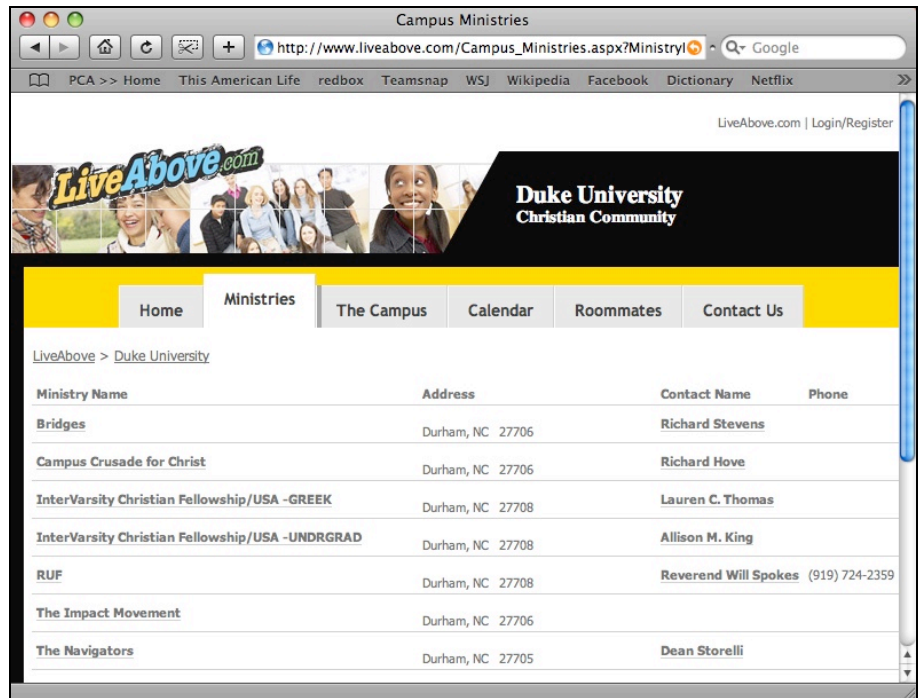

(Keep this list. You will use it later to see how many of these features are present in the ministries you visit in the fall.)

➔ Step 4 – The Fellowship Shopper’s Guide

	When I go shopping I feel...	When I go shopping I feel...	When I go shopping I feel...
My attitude toward shopping.	<input type="radio"/> an adrenaline rush. <input type="radio"/> intoxicated by the smell of deals. <input type="radio"/> like Xena, the Warrior Shopper.	<input type="radio"/> I have to. Food is important and I don’t have any. <input type="radio"/> This will count as “quality time” with my girlfriend. <input type="radio"/> I have to. Underwear is important and I don’t have any.	<input type="radio"/> oppressed by the merchants of capitalism promising to fill my soul with their cheap, imported goods. <input type="radio"/> like smacking the first smiley-faced salesperson to interrupt me with that phoney “I’m available if you have any questions” approach. <input type="radio"/> AAAAAUUUUGGGGGHHHH!
	<input type="checkbox"/> I LOVE shopping.	<input type="checkbox"/> I TOLERATE shopping.	<input type="checkbox"/> I HATE shopping.
